Land Conservation Provides Tax Benefits

Would you be surprised to learn that the U.S. Congress has made it possible for you to pay no federal income tax for the next 16 years?

If at least half of your gross income in 2011 comes from farming, ranching or timber production, consider yourself surprised. In December 2010, Congress

Our guest columnist this week is Will Wingate, Vice-President, Advocacy and Land Conservation, Georgia Conservancy, 817 West Peachtree Street, Suite 200, Atlanta, GA 30308 extended a tax break which allows farmers who agree to protect their environmentally valuable land from development to potentially pay no taxes for the next 16 years. See Internal Revenue Code Section 170 (b)(1)(E)(iv).

Here is how it works:

Let's say you own 200 acres with a conservation value of $5,000 per acre, or $1 million in all. Your 2011 income is $100,000 and at least half of it comes (Continued on Page 12)

Life-Long Ga. Dairy Farmer Treats his Cows 'Like Family'

Fourth-generation dairy farmer Scott Glover is passionate about his cows.

"Our mission is to provide a wholesome, all-natural product fresh from our farm to your family," said Scott Glover, owner of Mountain Fresh Creamery and Glo-Crest Dairy in Clermont, Ga., near Gainesville.

"We are passionate about our cows' comfort, and their quality of life," he said. "Our cows' comfort and health come first. And, in return, they produce quality, award-winning milk."

Glover said his cows are "treated like family because they are," providing them with care on a 24/7 basis.

"We're just trying to get this operation off the ground," he said. "It's been a bit overwhelming. People like our milk... it's locally produced."

The 10-acre creamery is in its fourth week of operation, but has been in the planning stages for about five years. "We had been thinking about getting people closer to what we actually do," he said.

He wanted to tap into the agri-tourism business, but his dairy wasn't conducive to consumer traffic, so he opened the creamery to show off his product. "We wanted to bring the consumer to what we were doing," he said. "In north Georgia, we have a population of people who are looking for products that are fresh. We have to identify where they are coming from."

The Georgia Department of Agriculture has played a big part in helping him set up his operation, Glover said.

"The GDA folks have been tremendous with their help and guidance," he said. "We built this place according to Department of Agriculture specifications."

Scott Glover, owner of Mountain Fresh Creamery and Glo-Crest Dairy in Clermont, Ga., checks his pasteurization vat which heats the milk to a minimal temperature of 145 degrees F, preserving taste, flavor, and nutrients. milked twice a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year. Milk is delivered from their White County dairy to the processing plant about six miles away.

About 1,000 gallons of Grade A milk are produced each week, using minimal processing.

"Our cows have access to feed that is balanced very carefully by our nutritionist, John Beckman, to meet their mineral and vitamin needs," Glover said. "They have access to fresh water at all times."

During the hotter months, the cattle not only are close to water, but Glover and his staff see that fans are turned on them during the hottest part of the day.

Mountain Fresh produces all-natural, non-homogenized milk, chocolate and low-fat milk, buttermilk, cream, ice cream, and butter. Glover said his all-natural milk at $5 a gallon costs a little more than traditional dairies charge. "We're not competing with conventional milk producers," he said.

Non-homogenized milk was selected, Glover said, because fat particles are left whole, making them much more easily absorbed by the body.

"We use a process called 'vat pasteurization' which only heats the milk to a minimal temperature of 145 F degrees, therefore preserving all the taste, flavor, and nutrients that milk has to offer," said Glover.

The milk is processed at that temperature for 30 minutes, cooled down (Continued on Page 12)

What can I do to keep moles out of my lawn?

Moles eat grubs and earthworms. If you treat your lawn for grubs, this will diminish the moles' food source and they will begin to look elsewhere. Using a product containing Bacillus popilliae, a bacterium that causes a natural disease (milky spore) of the grubs of Japanese beetles (one of the most common grubs feeding on grass roots,) will help diminish your mole problem. This is much safer and has a longer effect than a chemical insecticide. Products containing Bacillus popilliae are available at your local garden center as are conventional insecticides if you choose to go that route. Since watering may lure insects and earthworms near the surface, reducing the watering will also diminish the probability of moles digging near the surface. Also, you will have fewer problems with moles (and mice and voles as well) if you have a black snake or another snake such as a king snake in your garden. The snakes may give us a small fright when we come across them, but they are harmless to us and are true allies in the garden. Trapping a mole will kill that one mole, but doesn't give a long-term solution. Gadgets such as windmills and pinwheels do not work to keep moles away. Castor bean plants are sometimes planted to repel moles, but they have not been shown to be effective, especially for a large area.

What is the difference between a plumcot and a pluot?

A plumcot is a cross between a plum and an apricot. A pluot is a cross between a plumcot and a plum. An aprium is a cross between a plumcot and an apricot.

What exactly is buttermilk?

Old-fashioned buttermilk is the liquid remaining after butter is churned. It was (Continued on Page 12)

Advertising Guidelines Bulletin Publishes Every Other Week

All advertisements published in the Market Bulletin must relate to the farming/agricultural industry or be a part thereof; any and all submitted for sale through the BULLETIN must meet at least one of the following criteria:

1) must be produced by the advertiser on his/her own farming operation.

2) must be made by the advertiser from materials on his/her own farming operation, must be owned and used by the advertiser on his/her own farming operation for a period of at least 90 days prior to offering for sale through the BULLETIN.

Businesses, corporations, dealerships or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the MARKET BULLETIN. Commercial is defined as intended for mass market; handling large quantities of product for distribution (i.e., more than normal household or farm quantities); supported by advertisement (i.e., advertisement publications other than the BULLETIN; listed as "business" in telephone directories or yellow pages", etc.). Other indicators include, but are not limited to, holding business licenses and holding regulatory licenses/ permits/registrations.

Georgia residents only may advertise in the Market Bulletin with the following exception: out-of-state residents may advertise only in the Out-of-State Wanted category.

'The editor has the authority to designate the length of ads and the number of ads that may be placed by a family unit in any issue of the BULLETIN. Currently, only one (1) notice may be placed by any family unit in any issue of the BULLETIN. Family unit refers to all individuals sharing the same residence, address or telephone number.

Ads must be received no later than designated deadline in order to appear in the following issue. Ads submitted via our website will be scheduled automatically for the next available issue.

Ads will be published only once each time submitted unless the advertiser specifies on the notice that the ad is to be published more than once. Ads may be published for two (2) consecutive issues. A new notice must be submitted if the advertiser wants the advertisement to continue more than two Note: Some ad categories are published infrequently and are published only once per submission. Please check ad category headings for publication frequency prior to submitting notice

There is a 20-word limit for advertisements except as noted under category headings (special categories that are published only monthly, quarterly or bi-annually, have a 30word limit). Advertiser's name, town, phone number or name and complete address must be included within the word limit The Market Bulletin reserves the right

Most advertisers include a telephone number in their ads, but mailing address may be published in lieu of phone number. However, it is important that advertisers provide a phone number when submitting ads in the event Bulletin ad personnel need to contact them concerning their ads. Advertisers who do not want a telephone number printed in their ads should note this fact when submitting the notice to the Bulletin. Each notice submitted for publication must be in writing; ads cannot be taken by telephone. Notices may be submitted by U.S. mail, facsimile transmission, or via the Internet through the Market Bulletin website. Notices sent via mail or fax must be legible, on a single sheet of paper separate from any other notice, and be accompanied by the name of the category and the name, mailing and street address(es) and telephone number of the person submitting the same. Send ads to:

* To cancel an ad after submission or to correct errors made by the Bulletin staff, call department's toll free number, 1-800-282-5852, 8 a.m. – 4:30 p.m., Monday – Friday, and ask for the Market Bulletin ad department or the person whose name appears at the top of that particular ad category. If calling from the Atlanta area, the direct dial telephone number is 404/651-9081. Cancellations or corrections called in will be reflected in the next available issue. Note to Internet users: Once an ad is transmitted via the Bulletin website, the ad cannot be deleted or changed by the person submitting the ad. The advertiser must call the Bulletin at the number above to have the ad deleted. A new ad may then be submitted via the website.

Items for sale or services offered in any notice must conform to all laws and regulations covering sale and movement of the same. Ads for some categories must meet certain requirements. Advertisers are advised to review requirements under ad categories before submitting their notices. Note: Due to space limitations, all ad guidelines cannot be listed in the Bulletin each week. Advertisers who have questions concerning these guidelines may call 1-800-282-5852, 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., Monday - Friday, and ask for the ad department or write: Market Bulletin, Georgia Department of Agriculture, 19 MLK Jr. Drive SW, Atlanta, GA 30334-4250.

Seasonal Surprises—Lima Beans

Melanie Hollingsworth

It turns out that oatmeal is not the only way to lower your cholesterol. Green lima beans, also known as "butter beans" in the southern parts of the United States, are a good source of cholesterol-lowering fiber. One cup of lima beans can provide up to 66% percent of the daily required value for fiber. Fiber has the ability to bind bile acids, which are used to make cholesterol; therefore, since fiber is not absorbed, it exits the body and takes the bile acids with it. High dietary fiber content also can be beneficial for diabetics, because it prevents blood sugar levels from rising rapidly after a meal. A high amount of protein in the diet can aid in slowing the absorptive process that occurs after eating. Due to the high amount of protein found in limas, the absorption of carbohydrates is slowed and blood sugar levels rise slowly instead of spiking after food intake. The health benefits continue with these "wonderbeans" because they contain insoluble fiber. Insoluble fiber has been shown to increase stool bulk, prevent constipation and, in some cases, aid in the prevention of digestive disorders such as diverticulosis and irritable bowel

Lima beans are considered a type of "shell" bean. Most shell beans can be found in your local grocery store or farmers market fresh, frozen and even dried; however, the nutritional content between a dried and cooked bean varies. Shell and dried beans are both good sources of protein, potassium and iron. There is an array of different limas. Some popular varieties are fordhooks and baby limas, which are not actually young lima beans, but instead are a smaller, milder-tasting variety.

Fresh limas can be found only a few months out of the year, from midsummer to early fall. So you might be wondering, what are some good tips when buying fresh limas?

When buying the bean still in the pod, feel the pods to make sure the beans inside are firm.

If the beans are already shelled they should be plump, tight-skinned and bright green (whiter dull limas can be starchy).

Once the fresh beans are purchased and brought home, store them in a sealed plastic bag. The beans still in the pod can keep for up to three days; if they are already shelled they should be used within a day or two.

If you are a lima lover who cannot live without them year-round, they usually can be found frozen or dried in the grocery store any time.

How do you get this healthy delicious food on the table after purchasing? If the beans are still in the pod, split the pod open and push the beans out. The shelled beans should be rinsed before cooking. Place the limas in a pot of boiling liquid, water or stock. Then cover the pot, reduce the heat and simmer until the beans are tender. With fresh beans, this can occur in a time frame of about five to twenty minutes. The beans also can be steamed over a pot of boiling water in about the same time.

Be sure to season to taste and think outside the box when incorporating your beans into the meal on your plate. A favorite of mine is lima bean hummus. As with any hummus there are several varieties and ways to prepare, so find something that suits your taste buds. I personally like the "Herbed Lima Bean Hummus" I found online at www.recipiegirl.com, which I have included here. Keep in mind that hummus is flexible; the fresh herbs can be substituted with dried herbs and you can also get creative and mix your own variety of herbs and spices. Now go prove to granny she is not the only one who can cook great lima beans!

2 (10 ounce) packages frozen baby lima beans (or a 1 ½ cup of fresh limas)

1 large onion, chopped

5 cloves garlic, smashed with the side of a large knife

1 teaspoon salt

2 cups water

1/4 cup chopped fresh cilantro

1/4 cup chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley

1 teaspoon ground cumin

1/4 teaspoon ground cayenne pepper, or to taste

3 to 4 Tablespoons fresh lemon juice

5 Tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil, divided

2 Tablespoons chopped fresh dill

2 Tablespoons chopped fresh mint

Directions:

- 1. Simmer beans, onion, garlic, salt, and water in a 3-quart saucepan, covered, until beans are tender, about 8 minutes. Stir in cilantro and parsley and let stand, uncovered, for 5 minutes.
- 2. Drain bean mixture in a sieve and transfer to a food processor. Add cumin, cayenne, 3 Tablespoons of lemon juice, 4 Tablespoons oil, dill and mint and purée until smooth. Transfer to a bowl and cool to room temperature, stirring occasionally. Season with salt and pepper and add lemon juice to taste. Taste again, and add additional cumin or cayenne to taste, if needed.
- 3. Mound dip in a serving bowl and drizzle with remaining Tablespoon of oil. Serve with toasted pita wedges and/or tresh cut vegetables.

Make ahead tip: Prepare and cover. Dip will keep well in refrigerator for up to 3 days.

Taste and add more spice or herbs, as desired.

Dept. Internships Provide Valuable Experience For Students Interested in Agricultural Marketing

Ten weeks of waffles and work has come and gone, and I have finished my internship in Brussels, Belgium- what an experience. The work was demanding, but I view the internship as one of the most, if not the most, valuable educational experiences of my life. I am more than happy to be back in the great state of Georgia (humidity and all), but there are many aspects of the internship that I will never forget.

As I mentioned in my previous articles, I got to experience the work that goes into promoting Georgia products and businesses. I got to see, from start to finish, the process of the India Inbound Trade Mission. I was directly involved in recruiting businesses to participate in the event. Some of the businesses probably got tired of the numerous phone calls they received from me! By talking to producers back in Georgia, it really put into perspective the interest that companies from around the southeast have in trade missions like the India trade mission. It was not all recruiting all the time- we had companies that heard about the event through word of mouth, and they contacted us. We had a lot of Georgia companies, as well as companies from Florida, Alabama, and Louisiana. The amount of companies involved and the interest these companies showed proved to me how important trade missions are. These events are an inexpensive way for Georgia companies to meet with buyers one-onone and to make a connection, possibly expanding their sales to countries across the world. The feedback I heard from Georgia companies was outstanding. If a company could not make the event, they would tell me several times to make sure they were not taken off the list. Everyone was thankful for the services this office provided.

The education I have received prior to the internship has prepared me to take on the work and challenges I might face in the job market, but it is this internship that has been most influential to me. In a time where money is at a premium and programs have to be evaluated, I would ask that everyone keep in mind the educational value programs like this offer. The best way to describe the internship is to say I received a semester's worth of information and I did not even realize the amount of work that we were doing. It's not until I step back and take a broader look at my experience that I realize how seamless, entertaining, and educational the work was. Two and a half months seems like a long time to be away from family and friends, but when I think about what I have had the chance to do, and the amazing people I have met while doing it, the time away from home is not such a big deal.

If I had one wish for the internship (money aside, of course), it would involve having an intern year-round in this program. If more and more students got the chance to experience what I experienced, there is no telling how the world of agriculture would change.

I am very appreciative of the opportunity to take part in this program, and I thank everyone who supported this internship. I hope that the generosity will continue and this program will last for years

The preceeding article was prepared by Matt Pitts, who served as an intern this summer in the Georgia Department of Agriculture International Trade Office in Brussels, Belgium. Pitts is a fourth-year student majoring in Agribusiness at the University of Georgia.

Swine moving from farm to farm must brucellosis negative pseudorabies test within the past 30 days before they are moved whenever there is a change of ownership. Exceptions are swine from a validated brucellosis-free and qualified pseudorabies-free herd. Buyers are urged to request proof of a negative brucellosis and pseudorabies test prior to purchase.

Equine For Sale

If you have questions regarding ads in this category, call Andrea Stephens at 404-651-9081 or 404-651-9082.

All equine advertised in the Market Bulletin must have had a negative Coggins test within past 12 months. Negative reports are valid for 12 months from the sample date. A copy of this test report must accompany the ad each time it is submitted or the notice will be returned to the advertiser. For this reason, generalized ads (i.e., many horses, varieties to choose from, others, etc.) cannot be accepted. Buvers are urged to request verification of a negative Coggins test before purchasing any equine. Any falsification of Coggins tests can result in fines and/or suspension of advertising privileges in the Market Bulletin. This regulation also applies to equine advertised in the "At Stud" and Boarding" categories of the quarterly equine editions.

Poultry/Fowl For Sale

If you have any questions regarding ads in this category, call Andrea Stephens at 404-651-9081 or 404-651-9082.

Any person engaged in buying live poultry of any kind for resale, or in selling live poultry of any kind bought for the purpose of resale, must be licensed by the Georgia Department of Agriculture. Possessing such a license does not by itself disqualify an individual from advertising poultry in the Market Bulletin; however, advertisers should note that all livestock (which includes poultry), must have been in possession of the advertiser for a minimum of 90 days or, in the case of chicks, ducklings, etc., must have been raised by the advertiser before offering them for sale in the Market Bulletin. Mallard ducks must be at least three generations from the wild before they can be advertised in the Market Bulletin. Advertisers must include this information in notices submitted for publication.

The Georgia Department of Natural Resources regulates many exotic animals, including most hoofed stock except llama and buffalo. However, upon compliance with applicable state regulations, a deer farming license for the commercial production of meat and fiber is available for the following species: fallow deer, axis deer, sika deer, elk, red deer, reindeer, and caribou. For more information on the deer farming license, contact the Georgia Department of Agriculture at (404) 656 3667. For information on licenses of other species of hoofed stock (except llama and buffalo), contact the Georgia Department of Natural Resources Special Permit Unit at (770) 761-3044. Individuals submitting advertisements to buy and sell regulated hoofed stock in the Market Bulletin must provide a photocopy of the appropriate license with their ad.

AG SEED FOR SALE

If you have questions regarding this category, call Shavonne Smith at 404-651-9081 or 404-651-9082.

Advertisers of agricultural seed must submit a current state laboratory report (not more than 9 months old) for purity, noxious weeds and germination for each seed lot advertised. A seed lot must be uniform and not exceed 400 50-lb. bags. Laboratory reports will be returned upon request. Any ads for agricultural seed submitted for publication without this documentation will not be published. Licensed seed dealers cannot advertise seed in the Market Bulletin. Certain varieties of seed are protected from propagation unless they are grown as a class of certified seed. For example, wheat seed such as Florida 304, Coker 9152, Coker 9835 and soybean seed, such as Prichard and Benning, may not be propagated for sale unless the seed has been grown as a class of certified seed. Propagation of such seed is a violation of the Plant Variety Protection Act and the Federal Seed Act. If you have questions regarding certified seed, call the Market Bulletin office or the Georgia Department of Agriculture Seed Division at (404) 656-

September Garden Chores

Plant garlic now for harvest next summer. When planting, select a spot near the edge of your vegetable garden so the garlic will not be disturbed when you are planting spring crops.

Junipers that turn brown are likely infected with mites. These small pests crawl between the fine juniper needles where they are hard to reach with pesticides. At the first sign of an infestation, spray the plants with a systemic pesticide. This type of pesticide will be absorbed by the plant and the mites will ingest it when they feed.

Land Conservation Provides Tax Benefits

from farming.

After you place a conservation easement on your land, the Internal Revenue Service allows you to subtract the conservation value from your income, taking your income all the way down to zero. So in this case, you subtract $1 million (the value of the conservation easement) from your 2011 income of $100,000, resulting in no income and therefore no income tax.

The IRS also allows you to "carry forward" the unused $900,000, so you can do the same thing again and again until the conservation easement value is used up, or 16 years has passed, whichever comes first. In this case, you would use $100,000 per year against your income for the next nine years. You would pay no income tax for a decade!

Surprisingly, this deduction is available not just against farm income but against ALL income. In fact, even if you never have farm income again, you may continue to zero out your taxable income for up to 16 years so long as your land remains available for agriculture.

You might expect that if Congress is willing to allow you to pay no income tax for the next 16 years if you put a conservation easement on your land, that a conservation easement must be a pretty complicated thing. Again, you might be surprised!

A conservation easement can be nothing more than an agreement with a nonprofit land trust or government agency that your land may never be developed into a subdivision. You may still use the land for a home – even two or three homes depending on the agreement— and any farm buildings you find necessary.

Additionally, to qualify for this program, the property must be always available for agricultural use. Other than that, you may continue to farm the land, grow timber on it and even hunt and fish on the property. Nobody other than you has any right of access to it. You may sell the land or pass it down to the next generation. But the land will be forever protected from certain uses like subdivision development.

If this sounds too good to be true and you are looking for the catch, here it is: Congress made this available only until December 31, 2011. In order to qualify, you must execute your conservation easement agreement by the end of the year. If you are interested, please contact Curt Soper, director of the Georgia Land Conservation Program, at (404) 584-1083. His email address is Curt@gefa.ga.gov Mr. Soper and his staff will answer your questions and direct you to the local land trusts in your area.

Farm Camps Offered At Old South Museum

Those interested in seeing how early farmers lived and worked may want to attend one of the Old South Farm Camps being offered this fall at the Old South Farm Museum and Ag Learning Center in Woodland, Ga.

Each three-day session will consist of six or more classes, including milking cows, gathering eggs, washing clothes, tractor driving, beekeeping, canning, cooking, grinding corn and wheat, curing meats, plus more.

All meals, housing, blankets, sheets, bathhouse facilities are provided, and there is a community building with heat, air conditioning, and a kitchen available.

Session dates are as follows: Sept. 12-14, 14-16, and 16-18. Other three-day camps will be held through November 20. Camps also are scheduled March - May, 2012.

To cover meals, housing, transportation, classes, etc., a fee of $200 per person will be charged. For more information, call 706-975-9136 or go to the website, oldsouthfarm.com (click on Farm Camp). All ages are accepted, and pre-registration is required.

Notice

The Georgia Department of Agriculture will be closed October 10 in observance of Columbus Day.

usually flecked with flecks of butter that did not make it to the top to be skimmed. Today, most commercial buttermilk is made by adding a lactic acid bacteria culture to pasteurized sweet whole milk or, more commonly, reduced fat (two percent) or skim milk. After the addition of the culture, the milk is left to ferment for 12 to 14 hours at a low temperature. It is usually labeled cultured buttermilk. The flavor of buttermilk is reminiscent of yogurt or sour cream. Buttermilk is used to make salad dressings, pancakes, biscuits, cornbread and batter for fried chicken and in many other recipes. Served well-chilled, buttermilk is a refreshing summertime treat. It is also popular to serve with hot cornbread and pinto beans or other dried beans and Vidalia® onions. Some Southerners like to crumble their cornbread into the buttermilk and eat it with a spoon.

I grew two rows of peanuts in my garden this year. I just pulled up the vines to harvest the peanuts. Can I feed the vines to my cows?

Yes. Your cows will enjoy the peanut vines as much as you enjoy the peanuts.

Can Thai basil be used for pesto? What about lemon basil?

Both kinds may be used in pesto, as may cinnamon basil, lime basil, lettuce-leaf basil and other basils. The flavor will be slightly different for each, so experiment to find which one you like best. While a wide variety of basils may be scarce at the supermarket, you can easily grow some of these less-common basils from small plants or seeds you can find at Georgia nurseries and garden centers. You may find bunches of different basils for sale at local farmers markets where you may even find some Georgia Grown garlic for your pesto. Also experiment by substituting Georgia pecans for pine nuts or walnuts in your basil recipe. Pesto may be a traditional Italian recipe, but you can always put a Georgia spin on it.

to 38 degrees, and then refrigerated. It can be ready for the public only 10 hours after milking. "Our milk is easy to process," he said.

He also noted the appeal of his milk is its taste and healthiness. "The older generation remembers how milk used to taste, and the younger crowd buy it for the health benefits," he said.

The response to the business, Glover said, has been "very positive."

"We've had people come in here who haven't had dairy products in years," he said.

Mountain Fresh milk is available not only at the Creamery, but in six stores in Hall and White counties. "We're looking to expand, and get in more stores near Gainesville, Buford, and Gwinnett County," he said. "Right now, we're just trying to stay caught up with production. We're working out some kinks with our ice cream and buttermilk."

The Creamery plans to invite school groups to the facility for field trips, where they can see milk processing take place right in front of their eyes.

"Our Consumer Protection Division works closely with producers to ensure the safety and wholesomeness of Georgia dairy products," said Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Gary Black. "Scott is a great example of some of our agricultural entrepreneurs that are doing the right things to meet customer desires for fresh, locally grown products, and we are glad to see such businesses succeed."

The creamery is open Thursday, Friday, Saturday and half a day on Sunday. They've dubbed their curbside pickup window as the "moo-thru."

Glover summarizes his dairy operation in his slogan posted on his web page: "Milk so fresh the cow doesn't even know it's gone!"
